NEW DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION FOR WOODS BAGOT EUROPE

International architectural practice Woods Bagot today announced the appointment of Graham Legerton as its new Director of Education.

As a leading architect in this sector, Graham brings with him over ten years' experience and a specialist understanding of education schemes across the various strands of the sector.

Graham's impressive architectural career includes experience of leading major FE College redevelopments, multiple site school projects and University schemes.

He utilises his specific skills and knowledge gained in the education and workplace sectors in creating sustainable and inspiring learning environments.

Graham comments: "This role at Woods Bagot presents a very exciting challenge, enabling a continued progression of the skills and experience I have gained throughout my career, particularly in the education sector.

"Woods Bagot has an incredible international portfolio underpinned by continued research. The opportunity to work collaboratively and innovatively with international colleagues who share a holistic view of global trends in education design is very inspiring. It's fantastic to be part of the team."

David Tregoning, Director at Woods Bagot, comments: "Woods Bagot is becoming increasingly recognised as an architectural innovator in the education sector, creating truly innovative and inspiring learning environments. Graham's appointment further strengthens our team in this field."
